We gather today to worship together as a community. For those of us who have been here we take comfort from the womb of this community. A community that at its best has held us; nourished us, supported us, when we were a child, a teenager, an adult. For those of you who have come to visit, we welcome you and hope that you will find here in this church people who care, people who take time to listen, people who reflect the image of God.
